

vi
pr
3 ultimi volumi
Cambridge 1892 Nov. 24

My dear colleague,

I have already instructed the printer to send you Vol. XII (the current volume) of the Astronomical Journal from the beginning, and to continue it for the future.

The first volume is exhausted, with the exception of two copies, which are slightly defaced, but not badly. The price of this is 10 dollars, - that of all the others is $5.00 each. -

I will have them sent you at any time you may indicate, but will ask you to tell me through what channel to forward them, so as to give you the least inconvenience.

It is pleasant to have tidings from you directly. My last sight of you was at the railway station at Lucerne. I hope you have been well since that time, & are continuing so.

Very sincerely yours

B. A. Gould

Prof. Tacchini